absurd dishonesty could have gone no further. but the sequel will prove that such a conclusion would be erratic. Mr Grandpre, having served the colony in various capacities for about eighteen years, has now to retire owing to ill health. When he joined the service, he was a very sprightly young man-he is now a white headed old man, with his health broken, and suffering from a disease of the heart--Now we will show how the government behaved to him. We cannot vouch for the precise accuracy of what we are about to state. because we obtain our information from second and to some extent from third hands. We have avoided all reference to Mr. Grand pre, simply because we fancied that his case ed into their Now Premises, corner of Queen's might be prejudiced if he could be traced to Road & Zetland Street Bast of the Clock Tower, baving given us the smallest information. Well. Mr. Grandpre being condemned, that is to say, being declared unfit for service. he applied for permission to retire on such pension as he might be entitled to. This request being accompanied by proper certificates, could not be refused flatly, but Governor Robinson declined to comply with it, unti Mr. Grandpre's account had been squared. In the meantime however, Governor R. ordered Mr. Grandpre's salary to be stopped, so that no stone might be left unturned to kill an applicant for a pension who was suffering badly from palpitation of the heart. Mr. Grandpre placed his books in other hands. and urged his application for a pension; this was met by the outragious pretext that he was upwards of $1000 short in his contributions to the extinct superannuation fund. Let the reader fancy such a position for any O'Agullar St. managed that. That paid

One would have supposed that the force o man to be placed, in let alone a man suffering from palpitation of the heart—salary stopped, pension refused, and an act of extortion insisted on. Mr. Grandpre having never had his salary raised, had lived up to his means and is a poor man. He had not $1,000, but a certain. party whose residence is not very far from Governor Robinson still refused both pension and salary until Mr. Grandpre's accounts were audited. That being done, Mr. Grandpre applied for his salary up to the time of the audit; but that also Governor Robinson Oh but what a difference shall we see with Mr. Cleverly! He is well enough to attend in the same locality Godowns of 12,000, 30,000 to all sorts of duties besides his own, and to 40,000 and 60,000 piculs capacity. enter into large building speculations on his own account. Yet he can retire on the plea of ill health, and he will have a swinging l pension we may be sure whether he shall have contributed to the superannuation fund or not. He need not account for the hundreds | Consulate, Duddell Street. of thousands of dollars that he has wasted and squandered—but then he has a voice in the legislative and can help Governor R. in his THE Undersigned are prepared to receive Goods place hunting schemes! There is the rub. We hear another story of official meaness. One Mr Baker was appointed to the charge of the convict hulk pending the arrival of a man from England.
